Nā Te Minita Take Hauora

He Ara Oranga laid down the challenge to change things which improve the mental wellbeing of all in Aotearoa. It made clear that mental health in Aotearoa must take a human rights based approach involving modern approaches to care and treatment.

This Government is committed to making these changes to support mental wellbeing. I tautoko the Nōku te Ao: Like Minds programme as it addresses the lingering prejudice and discrimination that people with experience of mental distress face. By meeting these challenges with a social movement which upholds the mana and human rights of people with experience of mental distress – all of our lives will be improved.

To see broader social change and improve mental wellbeing, we need to go beyond the traditional remit of mental health services. I am particularly looking forward to seeing communities and whānau engaged in conversations about building and supporting mental wellbeing, not only in times of mental distress. Their involvement is a vital part of a national discussion to reconsider beliefs, evidence, and attitudes about mental health and risk. We can all ask ourselves what we can do to foster these goals for our society.

I am pleased to see Te Tiriti o Waitangi, kaupapa Māori principles, and a commitment to equity as foundations of the Nōku te Ao strategy. As Tāngata Tiriti, this Government is serious about addressing health inequalities for Tāngata Whenua. The goals of Nōku Te Ao are aligned with the changes that will be made as part of the Health and Disability System Review by this Government. I look forward to seeing Nōku te Ao bear fruit and improve every New Zealander's life.

Nā Te Rōpū Tangata Whenua

E ngā manukura o te motu nei, ngā tāngata wheako, me ngā ringa raupa, tēnā tātou katoa.

On behalf of Te Rōpū Tangata Whenua, it gives me great pleasure in supporting the Nōku te Ao Strategy 2021-2026.

This strategy demonstrates the collaborative work done with tāngata whenua and the Crown. Specifically in achieving the vision of a nation where all people uphold the mana and human rights of people with experience of mental distress.

We recognise the mountain of work we need to do in order to address stigma and discrimination for Māori. Evidence shows one in five New Zealanders and one in four Pacific people experience mental distress. However, one in three Māori are effected by mental distress than non-Māori. They also make up 16 percent of the New Zealand population but are over-represented in mental health and addiction services by 28 percent.<sup>1</sup> These figures reveal the disparities between Māori and non-Māori, and in some case these are expanding. To that end, the chances of stigma and discrimination impacting on Māori with lived experiences of distress is extremely high. Particularly, across various settings such as employment and health.

Nōku te Ao draws a line in the sand and says we need to do better. By involving Māori as leaders from the outset, the strategy accentuates Te Tiriti o Waitangi, kaupapa Māori principles, mātauranga Māori, Te Ao Māori, and a commitment to equity.

Our rōpū are fortunate to be involved in the transformation of the strategy into what it is today. A strategy that celebrates diversity and also highlights the need to have the hard conversations.

I am looking forward to seeing Nōku te Ao flourish over the next five years.
